

Nara King

Nara was born and raised in Southern Thailand. Aged 16 Nara began studying fashion design; one day a model pulled out of a show last minute and Nara was asked to walk in their place. Nara hit the runway and the rest is history! The response from her runway debut was so great she had multiple offers to start modelling with various agencies on the spot, soon after Nara moved to Bangkok and began her career in modelling. She won the prestigious “Elite Model Look Thailand“ contest a few years later which led to even more international work.

In 2018 Nara was cast in the Thai TV drama “The Miracle”. When the show wrapped in 2019 Nara moved to the United States to pursue her modelling career there. Splitting time between New York and Los Angeles, Nara gradually built her portfolio from there! Nara has steadily been building a US following and established connections in larger markets needed to reach that next level in her career. In 2021 Nara was a featured model in the Netflix series Halston and since then Nara has also walked for Louis Vuitton! Alongside this she has also worked for multiple big brands, stores & clients including Calvin Klein, Steve Madden, Nike, Kenneth Cole, Citizen Watches, J Crew, Kate Spade, Alice & Olivia, Michael Kors, Revolve, Forever 21 and many more. Nara’s social media presence is mostly focussed around her career. She is also an outspoken advocate to stop Asian hate and violence.
